

C. F. von HERRMANN,

WAR ENDS IN OCTOBER,
ACCORDING TO KAISER

ment to Bankers Who Predict Bankruptcy.

London, July 14.—The German emperor, according to The Times, in a speech to a deputation of bankers who had invited an audience point of view, the situation and the gravity of the crisis attending the pursuance of the campaign through another winter stated that the war would end in October.

Representatives are alleged to have declared even if the war were brought to an end immediately and an indemnity obtained, Germany's position would be difficult, but that if the war were continued, Germany's position would become utterly bankrupt.

It was in reply to these representations that the German ambassador's statement is understood to have declared the war would end in October.
